At the heart of Arlington's thriving arts community is arlingtonarts.org, the website of and for the arts in Arlington. Newly redesigned, the site is the place to find a performance, event, class or other arts opportunity. The site is a service to the public and to arts organizations. Along with the new look, Cultural Affairs Division is expanding arlingtonarts.org to include an online directory of individual artists of all disciplines, 18 years of age or over, who live or work in Arlington.

The potential for individual Arlington artists to reach a large audience with a body of work represented on the arlingtonarts.org website will soon be realized. It will go live within the next few weeks, and is an opportunity for additional exposure through a site that is familiar to the general public in Arlington, which will direct traffic to their more detailed personal sites.

What you will get: The structure of each directory entry will be in the form of a template on which artists may post: name, contact information, description of art, artist statement (limited to 150 words,) work samples (three images—sorry no audio files) and hyperlink to the artist's site.

Who: Individual artists of all disciplines, 18 years of age or over, who live or work in Arlington; musical groups (bands) who are not formal non-profit arts organizations and who are not represented by an agent.

When: Directory pages will launch May/June 2010

Fee: $25 for a one year presence in the online directory ($15 for students enrolled at an accredited school or university: $40 for bands.). Please mail the
